THAVER'S PATENT BRIDGE. NEW and valuable trestle Bridge has been patented A by Mr. G. W. Thayer, of Massachusetts, which will be found to be an important invention. The amount of strength attained by the structure is spoken of as being wonderful. The inventor feels confident that no weight which could be daced upon it, could break it down. This consideration, taken together with the economy with which it maybe built, will render it worthy the attention of all who are interested in the subject. This bridge is adapted peculiarly to Railroads as well as county roads, as it can be made of any reuired span, so as not to obstruct the navigation of streams when rafts or boats might be desired to pass, and can also e built at a very moderate expense.

A Thought Suggested by the New Year.

BY THOMAS CAMPBELL. The more we live, more brief appear Our life's succeeding stages; A day to childhood seems a year, And years like passing ages.

The gladsome current of our youth, re passion yet disorders, Steals, lingering, like a river smooth, Along its grassy borders. But as the care-worn cheek grows wan, And sorrow's shafts fly thicker,

Ye stars that measure life to man, Why seem your courses quicker? When joys have lost their bloom-and breath, And life itself is vapid; Why, as we reach the falls of death, Feel we its tide more rapid ? It may be strange-yet who would change Time's course to slower speeding? When one by one our friends are gone, And left our bosoms bleeding.

Heaven gives our years of fading strength Indemnifying fleetness:
And those of youth, a seeming length,
Proportioned to their sweetness. The Turn of Life.

From forty to sixty, a man who has properly regu lated himself may be considered as in the prime of life . His matured strength of constitution renders him almost impervious to the attacks of disease, and experience has given his judgment the soundness of almost infalibility. His mind is resolute, firm and equal all his functions are in the highest order; he assumes the mastery over business, builds up a competence on the foundation he has formed in early manhood, and passes through a period of life, attended by many graselected stock, which he will sell as low as any Druggist in the Southern country. Every article is warranted to be of the best quality and put up in the best style. Physicians arrives at a critical period in the road of existence; and Merchants will do well to call and look for themselves the river of death flows before him, and he remains at a stand-still. Statistics prepared by the American Medical Association represent that in the city of Boston, during the three years from 1846 to 1849, there were 6,888 deaths from consumption alone, while in the same period the deaths from typhus fever were only 2,826, and those from dysentery only 1,606 In the five years from 1844 to 1849 there were in Massachusetts 13,604 deaths from diseases of the respiratory system-30 per cent of the whole mortality. In Lowell, in every 10,000 deaths, 2,500 are from lung diseases. According to the lately published registration of mortality in Massachusetts, there were in 1849, 4,634 deaths from disease of the respiratory organs; a greater number, by thousands, than were caused by the diseases of any other set of organs

It will be seen from statistics like these that consumption is very properly called the "Scourge of New England." Cholera, small pox, and all other epidemic and infectious diseases combined have never been, and will probably never be, such causes of death as this results flow from fatal mistakes in living. New England has no fatal miasms, comparatively no squalid poverty, and, necessarily no unhealthy food. Our terthe materials of clothing are abundant. Where lies the secret of the destroyer?

In our opinion, the answer to this question lies in skins detilitated in suffocating stove heat, to such an extent as to make them susceptible to the influence of every otherwise healthful breeze, and to every change in the atmosphere. There is no adaptation of clothing to temperature, and there is in every country town a system of living in reeking kitchens, stifling with their heat and steam, that is adapted, exactly, to the production of pulmonary diseases .- Springfield Mass.
